Challenge

This global company was having specific challenges with its Canadian freight due to seasonal capacity constraints in North Carolina and South Carolina. With strict delivery appointments to Uni-Select and NAPAs with heavy fines imposed if deadlines were missed, the company needed a freight partner who could conform to the complicated delivery schedule. Adding to this challenge, the consignee was the importer of record, and responsible for their own customs clearance. Many carriers do not have the resources or the desire to manage this additional layer of complexity.

Solution

ONE For Freight assessed the Canadian freight challenges and found a solution by dropping trailers strategically at various production locations, while implementing a rigid shipping and pick-up schedule. Rather than segregating the company's Canadian FTL and LTL, ONE For Freight was able to provide a single source for its freight, eliminating the need for traditional LTL common carriers.

Result

By leveraging ONE For Freight's owned assets, the company's custom approach can consistently meet the needs of a challenging delivery schedule, with contained risk when travelling across the border and through customs. Now, the company does not miss deadlines nor does it pay any of the associated fines, saving approximately $25,000 per year.
